POLAR KING
INTERNATIONAL, INC.®

Outdoor Fiberglass Walk-In Coolers and Freezers.
Only from Polar King.

When choosing a Polar King outdoor walk-in, you have the flexibility to choose a thru-wall or freestanding unit. Thru-wall installations allow the operator to place the unit outdoors while providing the convenience of accessing the unit from indoors. Freestanding units, on the other hand, are stand-alone units that are not attached to the building and are accessed from outside.

The type of unit that is right for you will depend on how you intend to use the walk-in or what type of an operation you have. In many cases, a freestanding unit can later be used for a thru-wall application and vice-versa.

Whether you need a cooler, freezer or combination of both, a Polar King walk-in will save inside space and increase your buying power. Every Polar King unit allows you to design your own floor plan and enables you to locate doors and walls virtually anywhere. This flexibility provides foodservice operators unlimited storage opportunities ideally suited for their application.

Freestanding and thru-wall units come in a wide range of sizes and variations. You can get your Polar King in widths from 6' to 16' and in lengths up to 60'. Before you plan to expand, consider the savings a Polar King will provide.

If you are ready to solve your inside storage problems,
Polar King is ready with the Outside Solution.
We'll be happy to answer your questions or take your order.

WORK POLICY WARRANTY

In the event of a defective part or malfunction in operation of your Polar King walk-in cooler and/or freezer, the following steps must be taken to ensure successful warranty coverage.

1. Review Preliminary Checklist

A. Check the power source to your walk-in cooler and/or freezer. Make certain that the unit is correctly powered on and the power source is on. Check any breaker box or the external power supply.

B. Check the bottom of the evaporator coil. Note if there is heat on the bottom of evaporator coil in the walk-in. If this is the case, the unit may be in a defrost cycle. Wait for approximately 30 minutes. If the unit is in a defrost cycle, it should return to proper operation after cycle is completed.

C. Check to see if the thermometer is working properly. If possible, use a secondary thermometer to check the internal temperature of the unit.

After this checklist has been reviewed and operation has not been restored, the following steps must be taken to initiate warranty service and to prevent product damage:

A. Contact the licensed commercial refrigeration company of your choice or contact Polar King for a recommendation on a local service company.

B. If your Polar King unit is a cooler, standard ice should be packed around food or other products, in order to maintain proper temperature. Additionally, if possible, limit the number of times the doors are opened as well as the duration of time open.

C. If your Polar King unit is a freezer, it is very important to limit the number of times the doors are opened as well as the duration of time open. Additionally, do not introduce heat into the freezer and contact a service provider as soon as possible.

D. After problem has been identified by your service provider, have them contact Polar King for warranty authorization and a work order number.

E. If a problem occurs outside of normal business hours (8 A.M. - 5 P.M. EST) have your service company correct problem and call Polar King the following day to obtain a work order number.

F. All replaced parts and the repair bill must be sent to Polar King International, Inc. (4424 New Haven Avenue, Fort Wayne, IN 46803) freight collect.

All steps and procedures stated in this "Warranty Work Policy" must be followed precisely. Failure to follow the "Warranty Work Policy" may make you responsible for all expenses incurred, since any service call not requiring warrantable item will not be paid for by Polar King International, Inc. This warranty is exclusively for walk-in cooler and freezer units produced by Polar King and does not apply to or cover trailer cooler and freezer units. This warranty is not assignable without the express consent of Polar King and applies to the original purchaser of walk-in units installed and operated within the contiguous United States.
